On Tuesday, 21st, which was the Golden Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, twenty-eight relative and friends sat down to dinner at their home.

Brothers Church Notes

Last Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Burger gave talks relating some of their religious experiences and impressions on their extended trip during four months of the past winter. They attended church services about twenty different places. The Regional Bible Conference, at La Verne, Cal., was also attended. Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago and the Brethren Publishing House in Elgin, Illinois were visited. We appreciated having a share in the trip and receiving the inspiration from the various meetings attended through these talks.

Some time in the near future Mrs. Burger will give a more detailed report of the above mentioned Bible Conference.

Kind Lady: And how would you like a nice chop?
Tramp: Dat all depends, lady. Is it lamb, pork or wood?

Good Friday Services

The Third Annual Good Friday Service was an inspiration to all that attended. The music, the addresses and the prayers were so fitting to the occasion. The service helps us to more appreciate the Easter Season when we take an interest in it, and the glory of the Resurrection Day shines upon us all the more because we have had in a part in the Crucifixion of our Lord. It would not be Easter without the Good Friday Service. Much credit goes to the program committee for the well arranged service and also to all that had a part in the program to help make it worth while.

United Church Notes

Sunday, April 26th, Subject: 'The Eternity of Religion.'

In nearly every country today there are organizations at work to destroy organized religion and these, together with the indifference and half-heartedness of a large number who believe religion is needed but do little or nothing to make it effective are creating a condition in which many good people are getting discouraged for they think we are fighting a losing battle and are ultimately doomed to defeat.

Does the experience of the past and the teaching of history give us any clue as to what the future holds for religion? Whether you think the Church is on the defensive and is ultimately doomed to disappear or whether you believe it will ultimately win out you will be interested in the treatment of this subject.

In addition to the regular music there will be a solo by Mrs. A. Phillips. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are not worshipping elsewhere.

Stout lady (to little boy): Can you tell me if I can get through this gate to the park?

Little Boy: I guess so. A load of hay just went through.

How an Egg is Made

Experimental Farm Note

It has always been recognized that extremely complex processes are involved in the manufacture of eggs by the laying hen. The ovary and oviduct constitute the reproduction tract. The yolks are formed in the ovary and pass through the oviduct in which the various layers of albumen, the shell membranes and the shell are built around the yolk. Food material is carried by the blood stream to these organs and built into the egg. Different parts of the oviduct manufacture different components of the egg, such as thick white, (Continued on Page Four) thin white, shell membranes and shell. The general characteristics of an egg, such as color, size and shape, are determined by the kind of material that composes the nucleus of the cells of the individual hen. This material is inherited by the hen from her parents.

These facts have been known for sometime, but the interesting thing which has been discovered recently is the fact that the activity of the oviduct and ovary is regulated by chemical substances carried by the blood stream. There are several of these chemical substances known as reproductive hormones, each originating from a particular gland and each having a definite function in process of egg formation. Of these there are two main hormones, the female hormone and the pituitary hormone originating from the ovary and the pituitary gland respectively. The former causes the oviduct to grow and enlarge until it reaches the stage where it can produce albumen, while the latter is manufactured and thrown into the blood stream by the pituitary gland and causes the ovary to grow and develop yolk and to pour female hormones into the blood stream.

The pituitary gland is the instigator of the reproductive process. Upon the removal of this gland the reproductive organs of both male and female birds shrink to an extremely small size; the males look like true castrates and the females like poultards.
The study of sex hormones on domestic poultry is one of considerable economic importance since these hormones regulate not only the processes concerned in producing eggs, but those concerned in producing fertile eggs of high hatching qualities. Studies are at present in progress dealing with the relation between these hormones and the mechanics of egg formation from which several interesting points have emerged.

During the winter season just closed, there was witnessed the greatest step forward in ski-ing travel ever recorded. Over 51,000, more than a fifth greater than last year, made journeys over the week-end from Montreal to ski territory in the Laurentians, the mountain paradise to the north of Montreal thoroughly covered by Canadian Pacific Railway. Many came from cities in the Eastern United States to enjoy the sport.

Nine weeks have been named and arranged for Vancouver's Golden Jubilee celebrations proper this summer but the festivities will cover the whole season and are expected to attract visitors from all over the world. One of the high lights will be the re-enactment of the arrival of the first Canadian Pacific train half a century ago.
